Shocking. How dare you ruin a narrative everyone wants so desperately to believe? I heard of one man who died of alcohol poisoning. But because he tested positive for the corona virus during the autopsy, well, feed my fears, he was listed as a Covid-19... See more

Why is this all so confusing? I understand no one actually has all the answers but why are there so many different ones based upon what they do know?

I'm sharing this not because I believe it or don't believe it but if you open up the original post and read all the comments it's interesting to see people's opinions and if some of them are right look the F out.....🤔

I'm guessing the reason this guy has others making comments that seem scary if they are true is that the guy spends his whole time on Facebook posting this type of shit about covid and people who disagree with him are probably tired of him so they ignore him or have already blocked him so they don't comment.

His constant comments on covid, restrictions, masks, and the vaccine probably also just drive other people who are conspiracy theorists to his page and they just post their shit with him.

I'm not trying to discourage anyone to do their own research and form their own opinion. But if this dude is the basis for anyone not believing what the medical professionals and the government say, they need to check themselves. Just like if anyone decided that my opinion on covid was the tipping point in them believing the govt and the medical experts, those people would be idiots.
